Business Men's Association. At a meting of the Board of Directors held Sept. 20th, 1909, it was unanimously voted to recommend the credit rating system of the Merchants Mercantile Association of Troy, N. Y., and we suggest that the matter be given careul consideration when presented." The object of the book is for the protection of the business men against undesirable customers—enabling the honest merchant to cultivate the busi-honest merchant to cultivate the business of those who pay their bills in a prompt manner.

In no way is the book to be a blacklist as the rating of every citizen from the laboring man to the millionaire is given and is based upon their previous record for paying their bills. By this arrangement a careful investigation of every ones record relative to the payment of bills will be made and the result printed in the rating book.

The system differs from that of Dun's or Bradstreet's in that the one Dun's or Bradstreet's in that the one to be adopted by Bridgeport rates not only the business man but the customer as well.

Every one is included in the rating POLICE INQUIRE

Every one is included in the rating list so that at a moment's perusal a person may know at once whether a party is a dead beat or honest to the backbone.

Not only is the plan beneficial to the merchant class, but it enables the poor—but honest—customer to obtain a reasonable amount of credit.

reasonable amount of credit.

To those who have taken care of their obligations, their past record will be a letter of credit to the business and professional man.

By this system it is easy to see that the chronic procrastinator in business, the one who is always going to pay and who never does, will have a thorny road to travel in this city.

This book is being compiled by the Merchants' Mercantile Co. of Troy, N. The procrastinator in about sixty days.

In every city where the book has been compiled the merchants say it has a tonic effect on the trade, as their customers are all anxious to get a good rating in the book and consequently hustle to pay their bills in order to get and keep such a rating.

From the ground to the top of the side wails will be 45 feet, to the ridge of the main roof 72 feet, to the ridge of the transept roofs 58 feet, to the top of the crosses on the front and rear gables 80 feet and to the top of the cross on the spire 168 feet. On the msin floor of the church will be comfortable sittings for more than 1,100 persons and the choir loft will be unusually spacious. Ample space is provided within the chancel for the most elaborate ceremonials of the church, while the sacristies, two in number, are of fine size and are connected by a wide corridor carried across behind the chancel. The front vestibule will be 10 feet wide, by 36 feet long and will be entered from the porch through three wide doorways. From the vestibule three similar doorways will give entrance to the auditorium, and other doors to the first stories of the larger and smaller towers. In the larger tower will be the bentistry and in the smaller will be torium, and other doors to the first stories of the larger and smaller towers. In the larger tower will be the baptistry and in the smaller will be an iron staircase leading down to the basement and up to the level of the choir loft. All will be finished in conformity with their uses, correspondingly with the interior of the main church. The ceiling of the latter will be groined and yaulted in plaster and stucco, richly decorated with moidings and bosees. This groining will spring from the carved capitols of scagliola columns, sixteen in number, which are so spaced within the church as not to obstruct the view of the main altar from any of the sittings.
